Report

Viksit Bharat@2047, organized by the Arthavrishti, The Economics Society, Department of Economics, Mata Sundri College for Women, University of Delhi on March 15, 2024. The event sought to give attendees visionary insights on India's developmental trajectory and objectives. The keynote speaker was Prof. Deepti Taneja, a professor of economics at Delhi College of Arts and Commerce and joint dean of the Cultural Council.

Professor Taneja, who is well-known for her administrative positions at the institution and her proficiency in economics, contributed a plethora of information and experience to the conversation. Prof. Taneja was honored for her achievements to academics and administration at the start of the program with a felicitation ceremony.

Prof. Taneja explored the reasoning for state name changes during her speech, connecting comparisons to the colonization and decolonization theories. She explained the phases of colonization and emphasized the importance of education programs in determining India's destiny.

Prof. Taneja's vision of India becoming a developed nation by 2047 is intriguing and aligns with the goals. She outlined India's economic achievements, pointing out that the country's GDP is currently 4.25 trillion dollars. She also traced the country's economic growth trajectory from humble beginnings.

In keeping with the regional development, references to Goa's status as the state with the highest per capita income and Uttar Pradesh's goal of achieving a GDP of $1 trillion were made. Funds were allocated for a number of projects, demonstrating the ongoing commitment to regional growth and development.

Reiterating important concepts like organized labor markets, population control, and putting happiness and well-being first, Prof. Taneja linked her remarks to talks about social inclusion and economic policy.

In conclusion, Viksit Bharat @2027 offered a forum for thought-provoking conversations and forward-thinking perspectives on India's developmental journey. With her knowledge and insight, Prof. Deepti Taneja encouraged the audience to imagine a successful and inclusive future for the country. The occasion demonstrated the university's dedication to promoting multidisciplinary dialogue and developing future leaders capable of meeting today's concerns.
