

Comparative study between government and private school girls on the dimension of parental encouragement

Srishti Arora and Pranita Gaur

Department of Psychology, Mata Sundri College for Women, University of Delhi, Delhi

Parental Encouragement is essential for the children at all stages of life, it is extremely important especially during the adolescence phase. It is a period of stress as these children have to deal with physical, emotional, intellectual and social change. Parents through their encouragement and nurturance foster a sense of motivation in adolescents, which helps them to achieve and become well-adjusted members of the society. Since, parental encouragement plays a vital role throughout the educational journey of a child, a study was undertaken to assess the parental encouragement of girls studying in both Government (n=30) and Private (n=30) schools and a comparative analysis was drawn. Data was collected from both the groups by using Parental encouragement scale (Sharma, 1998). The value was calculated and the results of the present study revealed that there is a significant difference in the parental encouragement of government and private school girls.

Keywords: parental encouragement, government school

Parents are teachers, guiders, leaders, protectors and providers for elucidated a wide range of parental encouragement skills, including reflective listening, use of humor, communicating faith in children,