Overview

The Department of Political Science organised an Orientation Programme for the newly admitted first-year Political Science students of the batch 2026–27 on 28 July 2026 at 10:30 a.m. in Room No. 208. The programme was organised to welcome the freshers and give them an idea about the department, the course curriculum and college life.

The programme was attended by the faculty of the department along with senior students who interacted with the freshers and helped them become familiar with their new academic environment.

Welcome Address

The programme began with a warm welcome by Prof. (Dr.) Rouble Rani Sharma, Teacher-in-Charge of the Department of Political Science. She welcomed the newly admitted students and wished them well for the beginning of their undergraduate journey.

The faculty then introduced themselves to the students. They also spoke about the course curriculum and gave the freshers an understanding of what they would be studying during the course. This helped the students get a basic idea of their academic responsibilities and what to expect from the department.

Introduction by Senior Students

The senior students also introduced themselves to the freshers and shared a few things about their experience in the department. They also briefly introduced Polimates, the Political Science departmental society, and spoke about the opportunities for students to take part in its activities.

The seniors assured the freshers that they could approach them whenever they faced any difficulty or needed help regarding college or departmental matters. This interaction helped create a friendly and welcoming atmosphere between the new and senior students.

Presentation

A presentation was prepared especially for the orientation programme and was shown to the students during the session. It covered relevant information that would help the freshers become more familiar with the department and their college life.

The presentation, along with the interaction with the teachers and senior students, gave the freshers a clearer picture of the academic environment and the experiences they could look forward to during their time in the department.

Interaction with Students

The orientation was also an opportunity for the freshers to ask questions and clear their initial doubts. Students interacted with the teachers and senior students regarding different aspects of their course and college life.

The discussion made the session more interactive and allowed the newly admitted students to become more comfortable with the people and environment around them.

Vote of Thanks

The programme concluded with a vote of thanks by the POLMATES team. The department expressed their gratitude to the teachers and everyone who contributed to making the orientation programme possible. The freshers were welcomed once again and encouraged to actively participate in the academic and other activities of the department.

Overall, the programme was a useful beginning for the freshers as they started their journey at Mata Sundari College for Women.
