During the live session, Professor PC Joshi, Pro Vice Chancellor described how the Covid situation helped in the improvement of water quality in rivers and that its very important for us to keep our rivers in the purest form.

'Nadi Ko Jano' Abhiyan will definitely help the youth in finding out many facts of the rivers in our country- what are the other names they are called by, whether river is perennial or seasonal, any religious or archeologically important structure on the river, any festivals on the river etc. Mukul Kanitkar, while addressing the viewers in the seminar requested more and more participation in 'Nadi ko Jano' Abhiyan so that more people would be aware of the rivers in their state, know it's worth and continuously try to preserve it.

"A river just doesn't carry the water, it carries life." The speakers, throughout the seminar, emphasized on the importance of knowing our rivers and understanding its vital role in nature and our lives. Thus, we must take care of the nature and know all the minute details about it so that we can pass on the knowledge to our future generations to continue the cycle of conservation and preservation.
