Throughout the seminar, he guided students on understanding financial research, identifying credible data sources, analysing market behaviour and developing investment strategies with a rational and future-oriented approach. Real-world examples and simplified explanations helped students grasp complex financial concepts with ease, making the session both informative and engaging.

To make the session engaging, students were divided into Team Red and Team Blue, creating a friendly, competitive environment. The seminar kept the audience hooked from start to finish as they uncovered the truth hidden behind data, companies and financial decisions. Through hands-on investigative activity, students analysed real corporate structures to understand how net worth, tax planning, compliance checks and privacy-driven asset management work in the real world. Towards the end, the speaker introduced his innovative projects, Project Rudraksh, DeepWeb, Coinbali and Orbit, broadening students’ perspectives and encouraging them to explore emerging fields in digital analytics and financial research.

The seminar concluded with a thank-you note by our treasurer, interactive Q&A rounds, feedback collection and group photographs, marking the end of an enriching and dynamic event. It left students inspired to pursue financial research with greater confidence, clarity, and strategic thinking, empowering them to make informed investment decisions in their academic and professional journeys.
