

The Diplomacy Trials

On February 6, 2026, the historic Mata Gujri Hall resonated with the fervor of global diplomacy and rigorous intellectual exchange during The Diplomacy Trials, a premier Mock Model United Nations session. Orchestrated by DEBATTLE, the esteemed Debating Society of Mata Sundri College for Women, University of Delhi, in a dynamic collaboration with the Nexus Group, the event provided a critical platform for aspiring diplomats to hone their negotiation and critical thinking abilities. As visually captured and promoted in the event's official artwork, IMG-20260912-WA0005.jpg, the trials successfully bridged the gap between theoretical knowledge and practical statesmanship.

The session meticulously simulated the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women (UNCSW), adopting a competitive Double Delegation format where strategic teams of two represented various sovereign nations. The committee was tasked with navigating a highly contemporary, unprecedented, and pressing agenda: "Assessing Grok AI's Consequences for Women: Ethics, Equity & Exposure." Under the expert, vigilant guidance of Chairperson Mr. Pranjal Jain, delegates engaged in power-packed speeches, dynamic unmoderated caucuses, and intense, policy-driven debates. They critically scrutinized the intersection of emerging artificial intelligence technologies and global gender dynamics. Participants fiercely debated inherent algorithmic biases, complex ethical dilemmas, and the severe lack of equitable technological access, questioning how platforms like Grok AI disproportionately expose or protect women across different geopolitical landscapes.

Inclusivity and accessibility remained the core tenets of the event. By eliminating registration fees and maintaining an open-door policy for all students, the organizers successfully fostered a remarkably diverse and vibrant debating environment. Participants not only engaged in high-level geopolitical and technological discourse but also enjoyed complimentary refreshments and the exciting opportunity to win exclusive goodies for their exceptional diplomatic maneuvering. Every single delegate was formally recognized for their rigorous efforts with a certificate of participation, ensuring that all attendees left the venue with both tangible rewards and an invaluable, transformative experience in public speaking and global advocacy.

The seamless, professional execution of this intellectual symposium was a direct testament to the unwavering dedication of the organizing committee, functioning effectively under the esteemed patronage of Principal Prof. Harpreet Kaur. The visionary leadership of Convener Ms. Charulika Dhawan and Co-Convener Dr. Reeta provided a strong, supportive foundation for the event's overwhelming success. Furthermore, the robust student leadership—including President Yashika Arora, Vice-President Shakshi Singh, Cultural Head K V Sanchita, Secretary Pratibha Saroha, and Student Coordinator Amulyaa C. Harne—worked tirelessly behind the scenes to orchestrate every logistical detail. Embodying the rallying motto—"Learn. Debate. Dominate. Show up. Speak up. Stand out."—The Diplomacy Trials firmly cemented DEBATTLE's enduring reputation as a premier crucible for tomorrow's female leaders.
